

Course Lecturer CV – Ana Catarina Ferreira da Silva

The course lecturer has a degree in Biology at the University of Lisbon (Faculty of Sciences) and a PhD in Ecology at the University of Plymouth (United Kingdom). She has 12 years' experience in research, resulting in more than 30 and peer review scientific publications as first author and communications at international conferences. She has participated in several national and international research projects and has a wide research expertise across several scientific areas. She is currently a senior researcher at Instituto Superior Técnico. She has teaching certifications and a extensive experience in lecturing, having given more than 20 teaching courses on various science related courses and at several academic levels. She has also a wide experience is supervising master and PhD theses. She has attended several specialized courses on scientific writing, experimental design, data analysis, scientific and communication methods.

